Safety and reliability for residential installation

Safety is always the ultimate consideration in all the electrical installation.

It is mandatory in Singapore to have a 30mA RCCB installed at the incoming of the dwelling unit for people protection.

Knowing that the risk of electric shock is higher if there is a reduction in body resistance (wet condition), at time it is beyond our control, electric safety can be easily enhance by installing a 10mA RCBO at each final circuit.

Strongly recommended

We also recommend using residual current devices in sensitive areas or rooms where a higher than normal risk level exists, e.g., children's bedrooms and hobby rooms.
